

COLLÈGE D'ÉTUDES MONDIALES

Programme

Jan > March 2019

Renewal of six chairs of the Collège d'études mondiales

The Collège d'études mondiales renews in 2019 the research programs of some of its chairs. These are entrusted to one or two internationally recognized researchers, who are invited to work on innovative research programs.

After a first appointment, six Chairholders wished to continue their journey at the Collège d'études mondiales. Their Chair has been renewed on the basis of a new scientific program:

| the Ecological Reconversion, Work, and Social Policy Chair, now hold by Dominique Méda and Florence Jany-Catrice;

| the Ethics and Finance Chair, now hold by Christian Walter and Emmanuel Picavet;

| the Global Destinies of Latin America Chair, now hold by Ernesto Ottone and Yvon Le Bot;

| the Territory and Population Chair, hold by Hervé Le Bras;

| the Chair Altérité, hold by François Jullien;

| the Applied Geopolitics Chair, hold by Michel Foucher.

Each of these chairs is thus given the opportunity to deepen previously developed issues while opening up new research perspectives.

For three of the six new scientific programs a new Co-holder have been appointed. Florence Jany-Catrice is appointed Co-holder of the Ecological Reconversion, Work, and Social Policy Chair, Emmanuel Picavet of the Ethics and Finance Chair and Yvon Le Bot of the Global Destinies of Latin America Chair.

The Collège d'études mondiales team presents its best wishes for the year 2019

Yvon Le Bot, Ernesto Ottone

Order against democracy?

The Chair is organizing a dialogue between the sociologist and former Brazilian President Fernando Henrique Cardoso and Alain Touraine, on issues of democracy, social, political and historical actors, human rights, dependence and globalization in an upset context.

Monday 01/14 | 7pm - 9pm | Maison de l'Amérique latine

Chair Luxury in the age of globalisation

Marc Abélès

Marc Abélès and Lynda Dematteo are organizing a study day entitled The Temptation of Luxury.

In the capitalist world, it seems appropriate to privilege the commodification or fetishization of luxury items. Luxury markets are structured around large conglomerates, and this has had a lasting impact on how the field is shaped. The trading devices that are currently implemented, as well as the mediatization and digitization through blogs and online sales systems, have contributed to desacralizing the image of luxury.

This general context has had the effect of inducing a perception of luxury focused primarily on the object, and which in turn reduces the subject to the role of consumer. However, the relation to luxury deserves to be considered in all its complexity: in order to do so, it is worth shifting the focus and privileging the point of view of the subject who carries desires and fantasies, and for whom the meaning of luxury resides in the dream associated with the object.

Tuesday 02/12 | 9am - 7pm | FMSH A3-35

Chair Welfare Economics

Marc Fleurbaey

On the occasion of the release of the book The Manifesto for Social Progress (La Découverte), the International Panel on Social Progress (IPSP) returns on the work done during a round table in the presence of Marc Fleurbaey, Marie-Laure Djelic, Olivier Bouin and Sofie Wolthers, followed by the screening of the film A New Society, which traces the scope of the project.

Monday 01/14 | 7pm - 9pm | Fondation Gulbenkian

Chair Ecology, work and employment

Florence Jany-Catrice, Dominique Méda

The measure of inflation in France. Fifty years of controversy

Since the mid-1980s, inflation has been contained by multiple macroeconomic policies aimed at putting prices in order. Despite sluggish inflation, its statistical measure (the consumer price index) remains the most consulted index on the INSEE website, due to its multiple uses. The price index is indeed used for indexing wages, pensions, but also various contracts, type of support.

However, are we measuring prices today as fifty years ago?

What reforms have followed one another to shape the contemporary price index?

On the occasion of the publication of her latest book The Consumer Price Index (La Découverte), Florence Jany-Catrice presents her work and discusses it.

Chair Exile and migration

Alexis Nuselovici (NOUSS)

Music in exile

While, fleeing war and destruction, the people who migrate every day to Europe bring with them their musical practices, how do we give them shelter, how do we give them hospitality? The music in exile draws up a new sociology of the musical fact, which represents the opportunity to refound politics through art.

The stranger and the laws of hospitality

Forum around the question of hospitality: this ancient notion, so full of religiosity and morality, is it always appropriate to think our present situation? Is it not reduced to a temporary "right to visit", thus forbidding thinking of the transition from reception to integration, to citizenship?

Friday 03/08 | 9:30am - 6pm | Cité de la musique

Tuesday & Wednesday 03/25-26 | Collège international de philosophie & FMSH

Seminar

Accumulations and accelerations

Christopher Pollmann

The current injunctions to do more and more quickly give rise to increasingly powerful technical devices, both by their material performance and their seductive force. Thus, “artificial intelligence”, however as idiotic as any other mechanical process, makes dream, and the possible industrial manufacture of babies would satisfy a new “right to the child” ...,

The 5th session of this seminar examines the links between technical and emotional excitement.

The Collège d'études mondiales

Founded by Michel Wieviorka in 2011, the Collège d'études mondiales is part of the Research Division of the Fondation Maison des sciences de l'homme.

The Research Division encourages multidisciplinary work within the human and social sciences, supports the development of new fields of research, and mounts innovative projects on the major issues of the contemporary world.

In this context, the Collège d'études mondiales participates in the analysis of global phenomena by offering a stimulating environment for researchers: endowed chairs, scientific project incubator; dedicated space for collaboration between researchers from diverse countries and institutional affiliations.
